Rating Rationale

APL Apollo Tubes Ltd (APL) and its subsidiaries are engaged in a similar line of business with a common sourcing and marketing network. Due to significant operational and financial linkages among the companies, CARE has considered a consolidated approach in its credit risk assessment.

The ratings assigned to the bank facilities of APL take into account the experience and resourcefulness of the promoters, the company's long track record of operations and its established market position. The ratings also consider APL's diversified operations, the company's strong brand with a wide product range and its established marketing and distribution network. Furthermore, the ratings factor in the consistent growth in sales and profits of the company and its moderate financial risk profile with a relatively shorter operating cycle. However, the ratings are constrained by exposure to raw material price volatility and the highly competitive nature of the industry. The ratings also take cognisance of the significant exposure of the company towards its subsidiaries.

Going forward, the company's ability to improve its profitability margins amid competition, maintain a moderate capital structure and improve its debt coverage indicators shall remain the key rating sensitivities.
